Inauguration of the PEMSEA Network of Learning Centers (PNLC)

1 December 2021, 8:00AM – 9:30AM (GMT+7)
Online via Zoom

PROCEEDINGS

1.0 Introduction

The Inauguration of the PNLC was facilitated by the signing of the network’s Charter that formalized the PNLC and specified the ground rules on membership and identified joint activities and outputs amongst its members as well as options for sustainability and funding support.

Out of 18 PNLC members, 10 institutions signed the PNLC Charter during the event, namely:

1. Burapha University (BUU), Thailand;
2. Cavite State University (CvSU), Philippines;
3. De La Salle Lipa (DLSL), Philippines;
4. Institute for Global Environmental Strategies (IGES), Japan;
5. IPB University – Center for Coastal and Marine Resources Studies (IPB-CCMRS), Indonesia;
6. Oriental University of Timor Leste (UNITAL), Timor-Leste;
7. Royal University of Phnom Penh (RUPP), Cambodia;
8. Universidade Nacional Timor Lorosa’e (UNTL), Timor-Leste;
9. University of the Philippines Visayas (UPV), Philippines; and
10. Xavier University – Ateneo de Cagayan (XU), Philippines.

Other universities that also approved the PNLC Charter (with signatures to follow) include:

1. Kim Il Sung University (KISU), DPR Korea;
2. Prince of Songkla University (PSU), Thailand;
3. University of Da Nang, Vietnam; and
4. Xiamen University – Coastal and Ocean Management Institute (XMU-COMI), China.

The inauguration was attended by 86 participants who represented 14 PNLC member institutions from 8 countries; PEMSEA Executive Committee; PEMSEA’s country- and non-country partners; and other organizations. The event was organized by Partnerships in Environmental Management for the Seas of East Asia (PEMSEA).

2.0 Opening Remarks

Ms. Cristine Ingrid Narcise, Policy and Result-Based Management Specialist of the PEMSEA Resource Facility (PRF), opened the Inauguration of the PEMSEA Network of Learning Centers

(PNLC). She acknowledged the presence of various PNLC members and observers. Ms. Narcise shared that a total of 14 out of 18 PNLC members have approved the Charter but only 10 will be able to sign the Charter during the Inauguration. Ms. Narcise then thanked everyone in the PNLC for their continuing support to PEMSEA. She added that the PRF will continue coordinating with other PNLC members to support their review process for the PNLC Charter as needed.

Dr. Vann Monyneath, Co-Chair of the EAS Partnership Council, welcomed all participants to the Inauguration. Members of the PNLC are highly recognized academic and scientific institutions, and he appreciated the commitment that they have shown over the years as PEMSEA's partners in building capacity and providing technical and scientific support for the development, demonstration, implementation, and scaling up of integrated coastal management (ICM) and related programs in their respective countries and local areas. The initial establishment of the PNLC in 2015 provided a platform for these institutions to engage with one another and build the foundations of the network. He highlighted that as PEMSEA moves forward with the development of its Roadmap to 2030 and a new 5-year implementation plan for the SDS-SEA considering global and regional plans of actions and COVID-19 recovery plans of PEMSEA Country Partners, it is also important for the PNLC to continue to grow as one of PEMSEA's key partners. The signing of the PNLC Charter is an important first step in formalizing the network. He encouraged the PNLC and PRF to work together towards building a steadfast network that is committed to support sustainable coastal and ocean development at the local, national, and regional levels while promoting collaborations among the member institutions and benefitting the respective institution's missions and goals.

Dr. Wansuk Senanan, President of PNLC and Assistant Professor in Burapha University, Thailand, welcomed all the participants, the EAS Partnership Council, and her fellow PNLC members. She was honored to be with them in charting the next steps of the PNLC. Composed of universities and research institutions across the EAS region, the PNLC was established in 2015 in order to assist the national and local governments and other stakeholders to implement ICM in the region. Since then, the network has grown to include 15 Learning Centers and 3 Regional Centers of Excellence (RCOE) from nine countries. Building on existing intellectual capacities in the region, the PNLC reflects the commitment and passion of individuals and their respective academic units and institutions and serves as a reminder of what could be achieved by working together. Dr. Senanan highlighted the PNLC's accomplishments in the past five years, which includes providing extensive technical and training services and expert advice to national and local governments in support of ICM facilitating knowledge sharing at the regional, national and local levels; and providing a platform for collaboration and networking among members. These have helped advance the contributions of higher education institutions to achieving the United Nations (UN) Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 14 and other coastal and ocean related goals. The PNLC Charter will take the network to another level and will enable the members to continue building on the network and pave the way for more creative endeavors as well as benefits from regional synergies. On behalf of the PNLC Officers, Dr. Senanan thanked all the participating institutions for making the network possible. She also thanked the PRF for providing excellent administrative support to the network and the previous Chairs of the PNLC for keeping the spirit of the network alive. Dr. Senanan wished for a smooth ceremony and productive outcome.

3.0 Introduction of the PNLC Charter

Ms. Narcise presented the rationale for formalizing the PNLC as stated in the preamble of the Charter, which highlighted the valuable role of the PEMSEA Learning Centers and RCOEs as well as the network. She reiterated that sustaining the PNLC is one of the priorities identified in the development of the PEMSEA Roadmap to 2030 and SDS-SEA Implementation Plan 2023-2027. She went over the key elements of the Charter including the vision and mission of the PNLC, membership in the PNLC, development of the Code of Conduct and 5-year Operational Plan for the network, governance of the PNLC, and incentives for PNLC members. She also presented a summarized timeline of the Charter's preparation, review, and approval process.

4.0 Signing of the PNLC Charter

Ms. Karen See, Secretariat Coordinator of the PRF, facilitated the signing of the PNLC Charter. She shared that 14 PNLC members have approved the Charter although only 10 will be able to sign the Charter in the online ceremony.

Those who participated in the signing of the PNLC Charter during the event were:

11. Burapha University (BUU), Thailand;
12. Cavite State University (CvSU), Philippines;
13. De La Salle Lipa (DLSL), Philippines;
14. Institute for Global Environmental Strategies (IGES), Japan;
15. IPB University – Center for Coastal and Marine Resources Studies (IPB-CCMRS), Indonesia;
16. Oriental University of Timor Leste (UNITAL), Timor-Leste;
17. Royal University of Phnom Penh (RUPP), Cambodia;
18. Universidade Nacional Timor Lorosa'e (UNTL), Timor-Leste;
19. University of the Philippines Visayas (UPV), Philippines; and
20. Xavier University – Ateneo de Cagayan (XU), Philippines.

Other universities who approved the PNLC Charter include:

5. Kim Il Sung University (KISU), DPR Korea;
6. Prince of Songkla University (PSU), Thailand;
7. University of Da Nang, Vietnam; and
8. Xiamen University – Coastal and Ocean Management Institute (XMU-COMI), China.

All signatories were called by the moderator to sign their respective copies of the Charter. The signatories were then asked to hold their signed Charters to the camera for a group photo. Ms. Aimee Gonzales, Executive Director of the PRF and Head of the PNLC's Interim Secretariat, served as the witness.

5.0 Statements from Signatories of the PNLC Charter

After the signing of the PNLC Charter, the moderator requested the representatives from each institution to provide a short speech on their expectations and hopes for the PNLC in line with their institutions' initiatives.

Assoc. Prof. Watcharin Gasaluck, Ph.D., President of BUU, Thailand, stated that the signing of the PNLC Charter highlights their commitment to achieving the SDG targets locally and regionally. He hoped that the PNLC will continue to promote learning and sharing of harmonized scientific methodologies and good ICM practices. He also mentioned that combined efforts and synergy will accelerate the PNLC's work towards solving coastal management challenges in the coming decade. To this end, on the part of BUU, they are working closely and partnering with various sectors to transform their ICM-related research into action. He looked forward to the university's future collaboration with the PNLC through education, research, and capacity-building activities.

Dr. Hernando D. Robles, President of CvSU, Philippines, was honored to be part of the founding members of the PNLC. CvSU upholds all efforts to achieve the SDGs and believes that ICM plays an important role in ensuring that coastal resources are used conservatively and carefully, especially now that COVID-19 has abruptly changed the world and impacted all facets of society. The institution commits itself to support the vision and mission of the PNLC; CvSU will help provide the means for capacity development, research, and technical advisory services in support of PNLC. He hoped to raise more coastal leaders.

Dr. Erickson Martinez, Chancellor of DLSL, Philippines, shared that DLSL and PEMSEA started their collaboration in 2007 with the assistance of the Provincial Government - Environment and Natural Resources Office. In that same year, DLSL became a PEMSEA Learning Center in the midst of ongoing discussions on mutual collaborations in support of the rehabilitation of Batangas Bay. Part of De La Salle Lipa's memorandum of agreement with PEMSEA is the commitment to provide information exchange concerning knowledge, solutions, and tools related to ICM. DLSL commits to contribute to the achievement of the SDGs. They have been implementing and are open to joint activities in education, research, network-building, and outreach programs within the PNLC. On behalf of the President of DLSL, Br. Dante Jose R. Amisola FSC and the DLSL community, Dr. Martinez expressed best wishes to all PEMSEA endeavors and congratulated everyone on the signing of the PNLC Charter.

Dr. Kazuhiko Takeuchi, President of IGES, Japan, stated that the PNLC has a crucial role to play in increasing resilience towards climate change considering the need to bring together wisdom and knowledge and enable collaboration among diverse sectors through mutual learning and exchange. He also shared that in 2020, IGES became PEMSEA's RCOE on climate change adaptation and disaster risk reduction. As RCOE, IGES is delighted to play a role in improving the resilience of vulnerable communities in the EAS region. As a leading environmental think tank in the Asia Pacific, they have been conducting numerous research activities on climate change and sustainable development and together with the Ministry of Environment of Japan and other partners, has been promoting the use of the Asia-Pacific Climate Change Adaptation Information Platform (AP-PLAT). Dr. Takeuchi also shared that as part of the EAS Congress, IGES held a productive workshop with PNLC and other PEMSEA partners on future collaborations in the field of climate change adaptation through AP-PLAT. They looked forward to exploring further opportunities for collaboration within PEMSEA in the near future.

Prof. Dodi Ridha Nurohmat, Vice-Rector of IPB-CCMRS, Indonesia, stated that as a PNLC member, CCMRS highly regard the role of the PNLC, not only for its role in integrated coastal and marine management but also for the advancement of marine and fisheries science. Climate change, food security, population, and ecosystem health are matters that must be addressed in synergy as part of a regional strategy. As part of IPB's commitment to this area, the CCMRS continues to strengthen national and global collaborations with partners on issues related to the SDGs. He then emphasized that the network's presence in East Asia must be strengthened into a strategic partnership.

H.E. Chet Chealy, Ph.D., Rector of RUPP, Cambodia, hopes that the network will not only support them for academic purposes, but also go beyond other parts of life for the sake of development and peace. They commit to do their best for the network.

Prof. dr. João Soares Martins, MPH, Ph.D., Rector of UNTL, Timor-Leste, hoped that the university will be able to benefit more from this network considering the recent establishment of the Department of Fisheries and Marine Sciences in the university. On behalf of UNTL, he university hoped to learn more from the network to enrich their knowledge, especially in the area of coastal environment and marine sciences and emphasized the PNLC's duty to help maintain healthy marine and coastal areas.

Assoc. Prof. Le Quang Son, Vice President of UD, Vietnam, expressed his excitement to participate in a number of events and activities within the PEMSEA framework. He provided an overview of the university, which is one of three leading national higher education institutions in Vietnam and a key multi-level and multi-disciplinary university at the regional level. The university has so far established relationships with more than 250 prestigious international partners. With the adoption of the PNLC Charter, he hoped that the members will work together more closely for the benefit of not only the institutions concerned but also for the good of neighboring countries in East Asia. He then mentioned the need to concretize the PNLC Charter with specific activities.

Dr. Clement C. Camposano, Chancellor of UPV, Philippines, stated that UPV is committed to doing its share in achieving the SDGs. With UPV's institutional focus on fisheries and aquatic sciences, they are particularly concerned with the challenges they face as regards SDG 14 (Life Below Water). This includes intractable issues in coastal and marine biodiversity conservation, marine protected area management, sustainable fisheries, and invasive alien species management, among others. They believe that active participation in the PNLC will help strengthen their existing research, public service, and academic programs, considering the opportunities to work with and learn from other institutions with similar mandates. The university is therefore honored to be a signatory to this Charter.

Fr. Mars P. Tan, S.J., Ph.D., President of XU, Philippines, stated that XU, through its environmental centers (in particular, the McKeough Marine Center), has been active in research and advocacy work for the protection and rehabilitation of Cagayan de Oro River and Macajalar Bay, the largest river and bay respectively within Cagayan de Oro City and the region, in partnership with government units and private institutions. At present, the center is embarking on replanting the bay with various species of mangroves while capacitating the local communities as empowered social and business partners. He believes that the PNLC partnership will help XU achieve its goals.

6.0 Next Steps and Closing Remarks

Dr. Jae Ryoung Oh, Chair of the Technical Session, EAS Partnership Council (PC), briefed the signatories and participants on the next steps for PNLC members as follows:

- December 2021 – Q1 2022
  - Other members to complete the PNLC Charter approval and signing process
- January 2022
  - PRF, as Interim Secretariat, to draft and circulate the following for review of PNLC members:
    - Rules on the nomination and election of PNLC officers
    - Options and points for consideration on the establishment of the PNLC Secretariat
- 2nd half of February 2022
  - Conduct of General Assembly (first organizational meeting) to:
    - Approve/review the rules on the nomination and election of PNLC officers
    - Discuss the options and points for consideration on the establishment of the PNLC Secretariat
    - Share and discuss opportunities for PNLC collaboration
- March – May 2022
  - Call for nominations for PNLC officers and shortlisting of the nominees (consensus-building)
  - Development and release of the following for review of PNLC members:
    - Draft PNLC Code of Conduct
    - Draft 5-Year Operational Plan
    - Draft 2023 work plan and budget
- May 2022
  - Conduct of Second General Assembly to:
    - Elect the new PNLC officers and conduct their oath-taking
    - Solicit comments on the draft Code of Conduct, 5-Year Operational Plan, and 2023 work plan and budget
- June – November 2022
  - Conduct of email consultations on succeeding drafts of the Code of Conduct, 5-Year Operational Plan, and 2023 work plan and budget
- July 2022
  - PNLC President to present updates on PNLC work, including next steps, at the 14th EAS PC Meeting
- December 2022

- Conduct of Third General Assembly to:
  - Approve the Code of Conduct, 5-Year Operational Plan, and 2023 work plan and budget
  - Share the 2022 accomplishments of PNLC members and the network as a whole

Dr. Oh then delivered the closing remarks of the inauguration. He proceeded to thank and congratulate the 10 founding members that have signed the PNLC Charter as well as the four other members that are in the final stage of their internal processes for signing the charter. He was certain that more institutions in the EAS region will join the PNLC and wished the network a productive and successful future. He then thanked the PEMSEA Resource Facility for their hard work and excellent organization of the Inauguration.
